Industry SWOT Analysis :

Strengths

- Only vertical end to end business model in entire Diamond industry and fastest time to market for any new gem-find or new product.
- Low cost of operation at both retail as well as manufacturing side.
- Highly scalable business model without large Capex expenses.
- Good combination of technical as well as advisory personnel in the management.
- Good Industry experience & knowledge of Promoters.
- Independent and experienced Board of Directors.
- A large number of Gems and Jewellery institutions in India that provide regular supply of trained manpower.
- Diamond has three primary roles in industry: (A) it is used as a cutting tool (B) it is imbedded in another material and used as a tool or abrasive (C) it is turned to powder or paste for grinding and polishing.
- Diamond is used for machining a wide variety of plastics, glasses, and metals, shaping products such as the drums for copying machines, polygon mirrors in laser printers, and aluminum-alloy pistons in automobile engines.
- The Diamond industry in Surat is the largest user of laser machines in India. Also extensively use modern equipments like polishing machines, which are semi automatic and automatic and diamond planners, which are computerized.
- Diamonds from Surat are exported to a lot of countries all over the world. Exports are routed through exporters based in Mumbai.

Weaknesses

- Low indigenous reserves of rough and diamonds.
- Organizational development processes are at relatively initial phase.
- Relatively large reliance on promoters for overall management.
- There are no institutes for training new workers.
- Diamond cannot be used for machining alloys of iron. Under intense machining conditions the diamond abrades very quickly against some materials, apparently because of a high-temperature reaction between iron and carbon.
- As the major raw material requirements need to be imported, companies normally stock huge quantities of inventory resulting high inventory carrying costs.
- Technology is less improved compared to China and other parts of diamond manufacturing countries.

Opportunities

- 1/3 of the population of Surat is a part of the flourishing diamond industry. Population of Surat thrives on diamond and textile related job opportunities. Lot of people from all over India have found employment in the diamond industries.
- There are a total of 10000 diamond processing units in the city of Surat employing around 15 lacs people.
- New initiatives by the government of Gujarat aim at training diamond cutters in jewellery making thereby providing them with a wider scope in this industry.
- It is believed that almost 90 per cent of the small diamonds obtained in different mines in Africa and cut and polished in Surat.

Threats

- Volatility in prices of rough gemstones.
- China posing threat to the Indian diamond industry.
- The diamond manufacturers and the artisans have thus advanced further in their field sustaining their profits even as they glitter in various stores in India.
- Diamond exporters are feeling the heat of the US meltdown. With the demand gone down not only in the international market, but in the domestic market as well, more orders are being cancelled every day.
- The diamond industry in Canada's Far North is vulnerable to smugglers looking to import "blood diamonds" or launder the proceeds of organized crime syndicates and terrorist organizations.
